REMEMBRANCE SUNDAY

Our memorials list the many who died in the Great War, the war to end all wars, and fewer from the Second World War. Sadly the death and injury continues—the Falklands, Iraq and Afghanistan. Young men and women continue to do their duty with loyalty to their comrades, their country and with irrepressible good nature. These poems were written during the 1914-1918 war: Owen's is well known, but the other still resonates today.

Anthem for Doomed Youth

(an extract)

What passing bells for these who die as cattle?
Only the monstrous anger of the guns,
Only the stuttering rifles' rapid rattle
Can patter out their hasty orisons.
No mockeries for them: no prayers nor bells,
Nor any voice of mourning save the choirs -
The shrill, demented choirs of shells;
And bugles calling for them from sad shires.

Wilfred Owen

The Veteran

We came upon him sitting in the sun,
Blinded by war, and left.
And past the fence
There came the young soldiers from the
Hand and Flower
Asking advice of his experience.

And he said this, and that,
and told them tales,
And all the nightmares of each empty head
Blew into air; then, hearing us beside,
"Poor chaps, how'd they know what it's like?"
He said.

And we stood there,
and watched him as he sat,
Turning his sockets where they went away,
Until it came to one of us to ask
"And you're—how old?"
"Nineteen, the third of May".
